What cookies are and what they are used for

A cookie is a text file that a website visited by the user sends to his terminal (computer, mobile device such as smartphone or tablet), where it is stored and then transmitted to that site during a subsequent visit to the same site.

Cookies are distinguished:

- on the basis of the entity that installs them, depending on whether it is the same operator of the site visited (so-called "first-party cookies") or a different entity (so-called "third-party cookies");
- according to the purpose of each cookie: some cookies allow better navigation, storing some of the user's choices, for example the language (so-called "technical cookies"), other cookies allow monitoring the user's navigation also in order to send advertising and/or offer services in line with his/her preferences (so-called "profiling cookies").

Only profiling cookies require the user's prior consent to their use.

The Site uses first-party technical and profiling cookies as well as third-party profiling cookies.

The Data Controller is exclusively responsible for the first party cookies installed on the Site.
